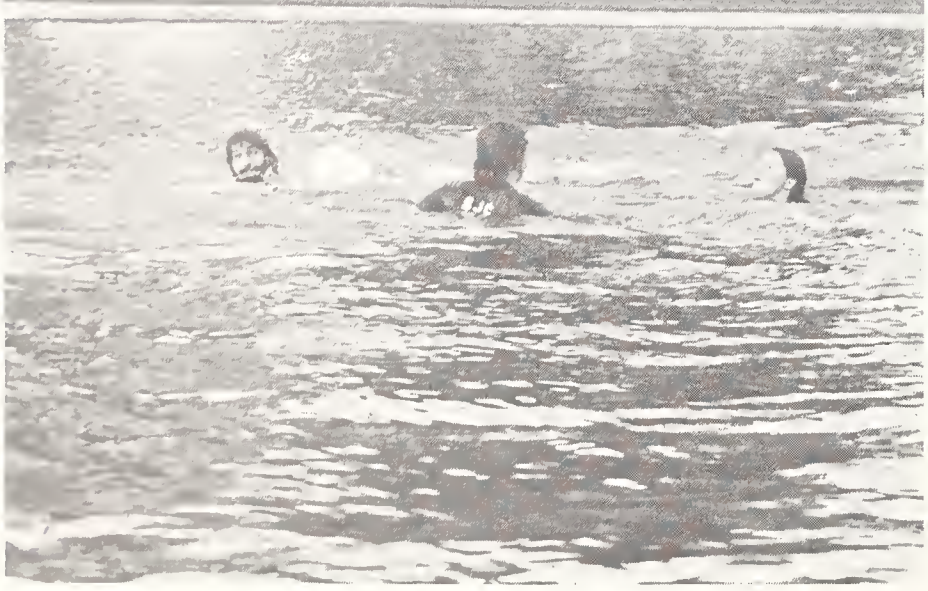
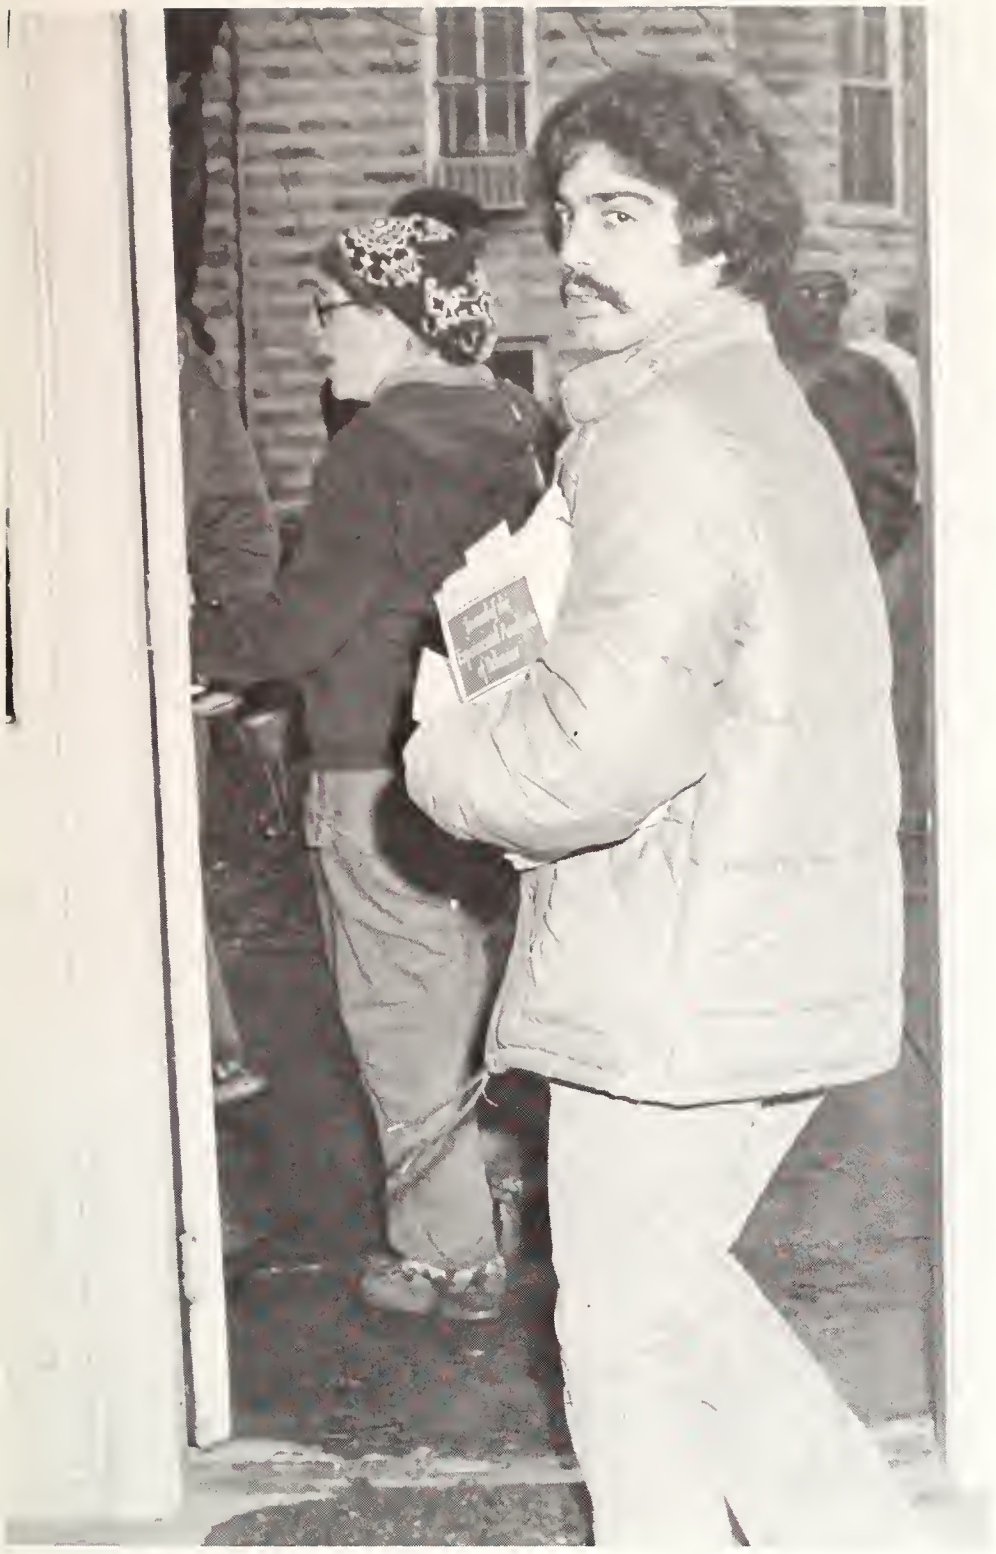
PHASE 1976

VOLUME 36

If I had to describe Saint Joseph's College to someone, I guess I'd say that it's a place with its own personality. You always hear that the people make this college, so maybe the personality one senses is that elusive "Puma spirit."





A drive through campus elicits a multitude of feelings. You pass the pond and can almost hear the shouts of someone getting a birthday dunking. How many of us have started running to make that nine o'clock class when the chapel bells chimed as we were in the post office staring at an empty mailbox, or worse yet, looking longingly at a letter inside when we'd forgotten our key?

Saint Joe's may be short on the fraternities and sororities of which larger schools boast, but that doesn't mean we're missing out on anything. Each dorm, often each floor, acquires a separate identity, and its inhabitants develop close-knit relationships that would rival the ties between any fraternity brothers.

Yet, these friendships are spontaneous. We don't pick and choose and pledge those who look like suitable companions. Instead, we live with people and discover the real stuff they're made of before we decide whether they're right for us.

And somehow, no one ever ends up alone.

"All of your classes are in that one little building?" visitors ask as they stare at the Science Building in disbelief.

"Yeah, classes, the library, and the auditorium too. But, I kind of like it that way. It's hard to get lost!"

When people ask the advantages of a small college, one thing always comes to mind. I wouldn't give up the dinners in an all-campus cafeteria for anything. Freshman year it's great to sit from 4:30 until six and examine all of the new faces, wondering which ones will touch your four years. By senior year, if there's someone you'd like to see or talk to, you know about what time they'll be eating. You can always rush in, drop off a quick message and be off to Southside for a wagon-master.

It's funny, everyone always gripes about cafeteria food, but most people leave here a few pounds heavier than when they arrived. Maybe it's those late-night trips to the snack bar or the truck stop . . .

It takes a special kind of person to be a Puma. I'd say that person is one who sees the potential rather than the actual. When an incoming student first enters his room, you can tell whether he'll make it as a Puma. If he throws up his arms and doesn't bother unpacking, he wouldn't have been happy here anyway.

Puma spirit means: hanging a no-pest strip and a few posters, picking up a second-hand rug and a lopsided arm chair, and settling for a multi-colored bedspread that will match purple, pea-green or mustard yellow walls. This can make any room a home away from home.

Beer Drinkers
Make Better Lovers

Freshman orientation means confusion. It's getting an IBM card and not knowing what to do with it; it's praying that your new roommate travels light and doesn't mind the top bunk. Are Dean Hughes and Ma Dunn really as mean as they look? And what is a Core syllabus anyway?

STUDENT LIFE

Saint Joseph's College is located in a small, quiet town, but that doesn't mean that Pumas are at a loss for entertainment.

True, there are students who pack their suitcases each week and head for the big city. But many of us prefer an afternoon jaunt to Southlake Mall or Lafayette to satisfy that craving for a Big Mac or a deep dish pizza, so that we're back in time to party.

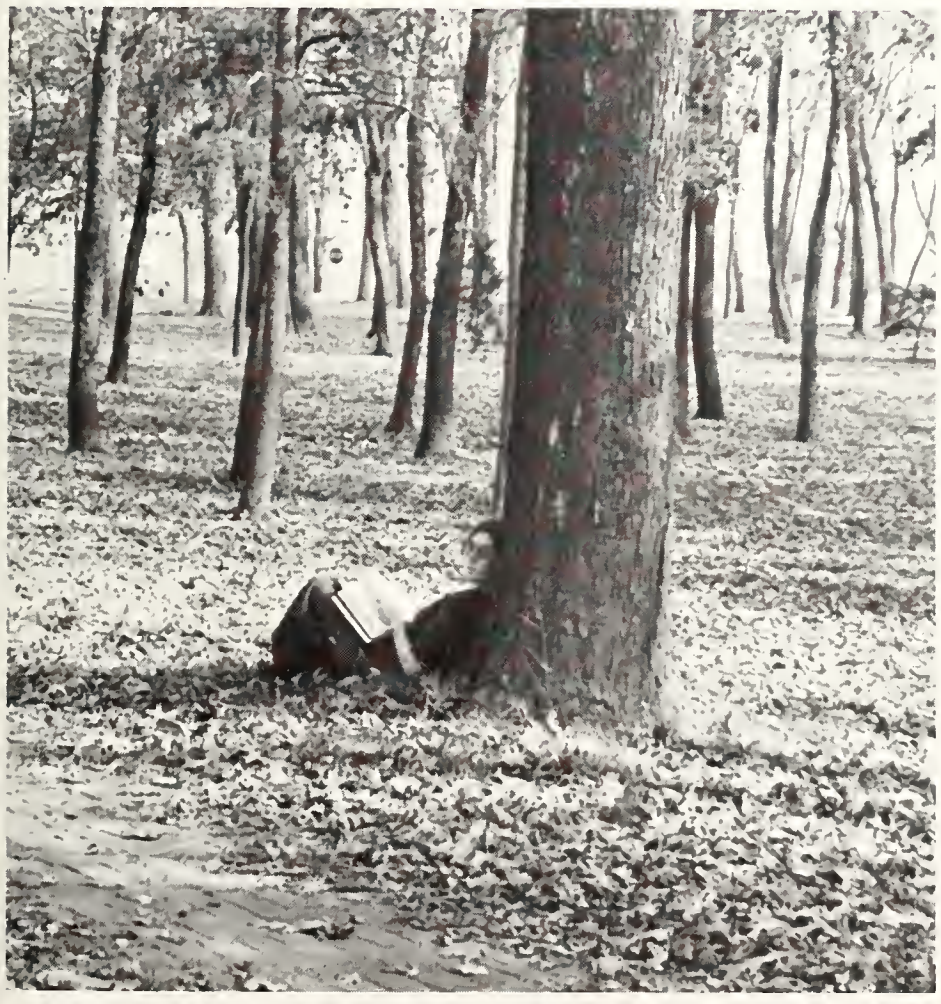
Each of us has a favorite, secluded spot where we do our serious studying. If it's noisy in the dorm, you might find a deserted classroom, bury yourself in the catacombs, or maybe just pull up a patch of grass.



And in the classroom, perhaps the biggest plus is that we're given a three-dimensional education. We learn not only from textbooks and lectures, but also through group interaction.

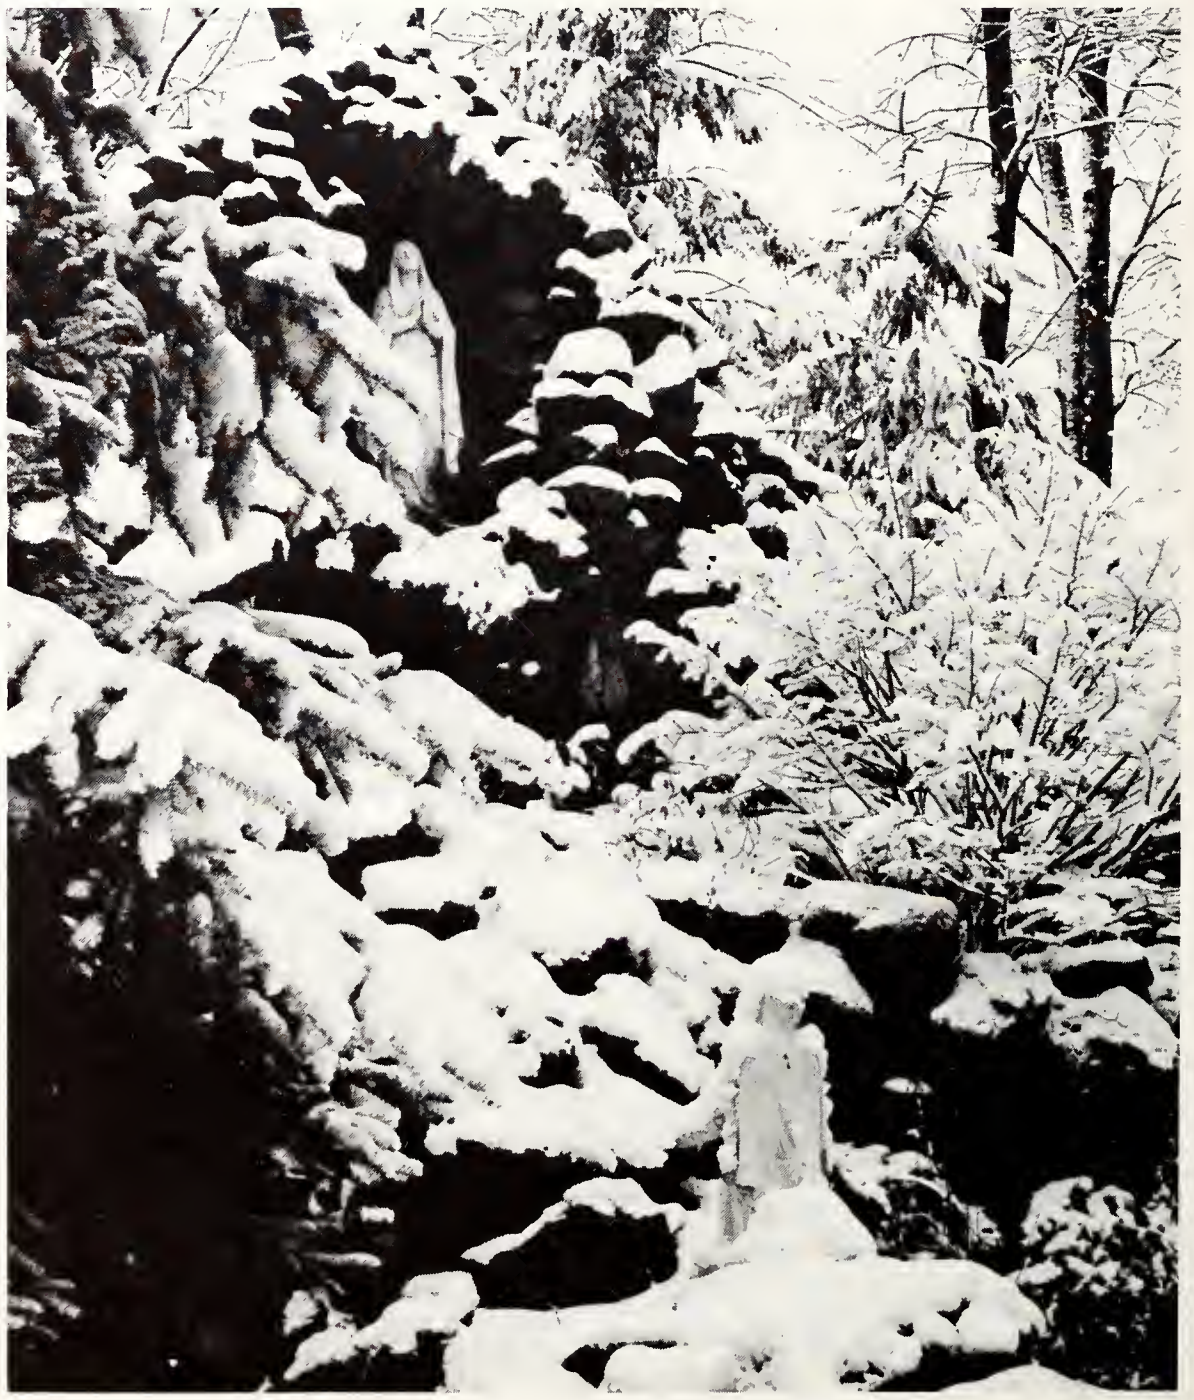
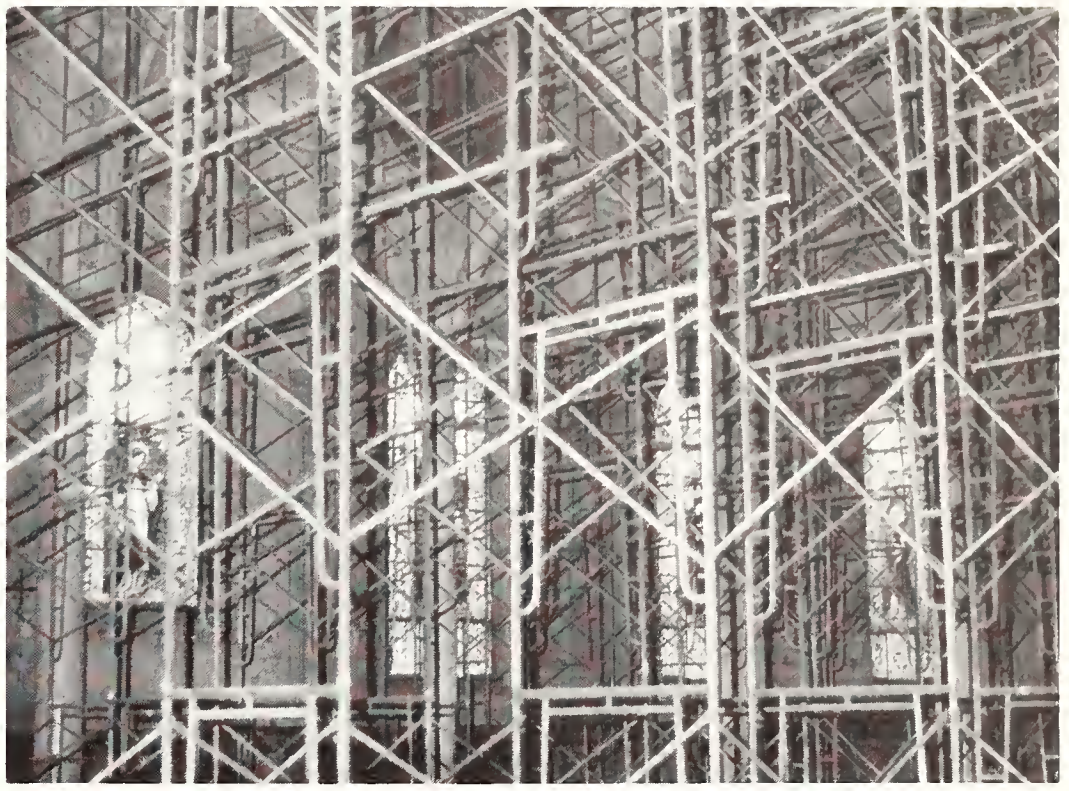
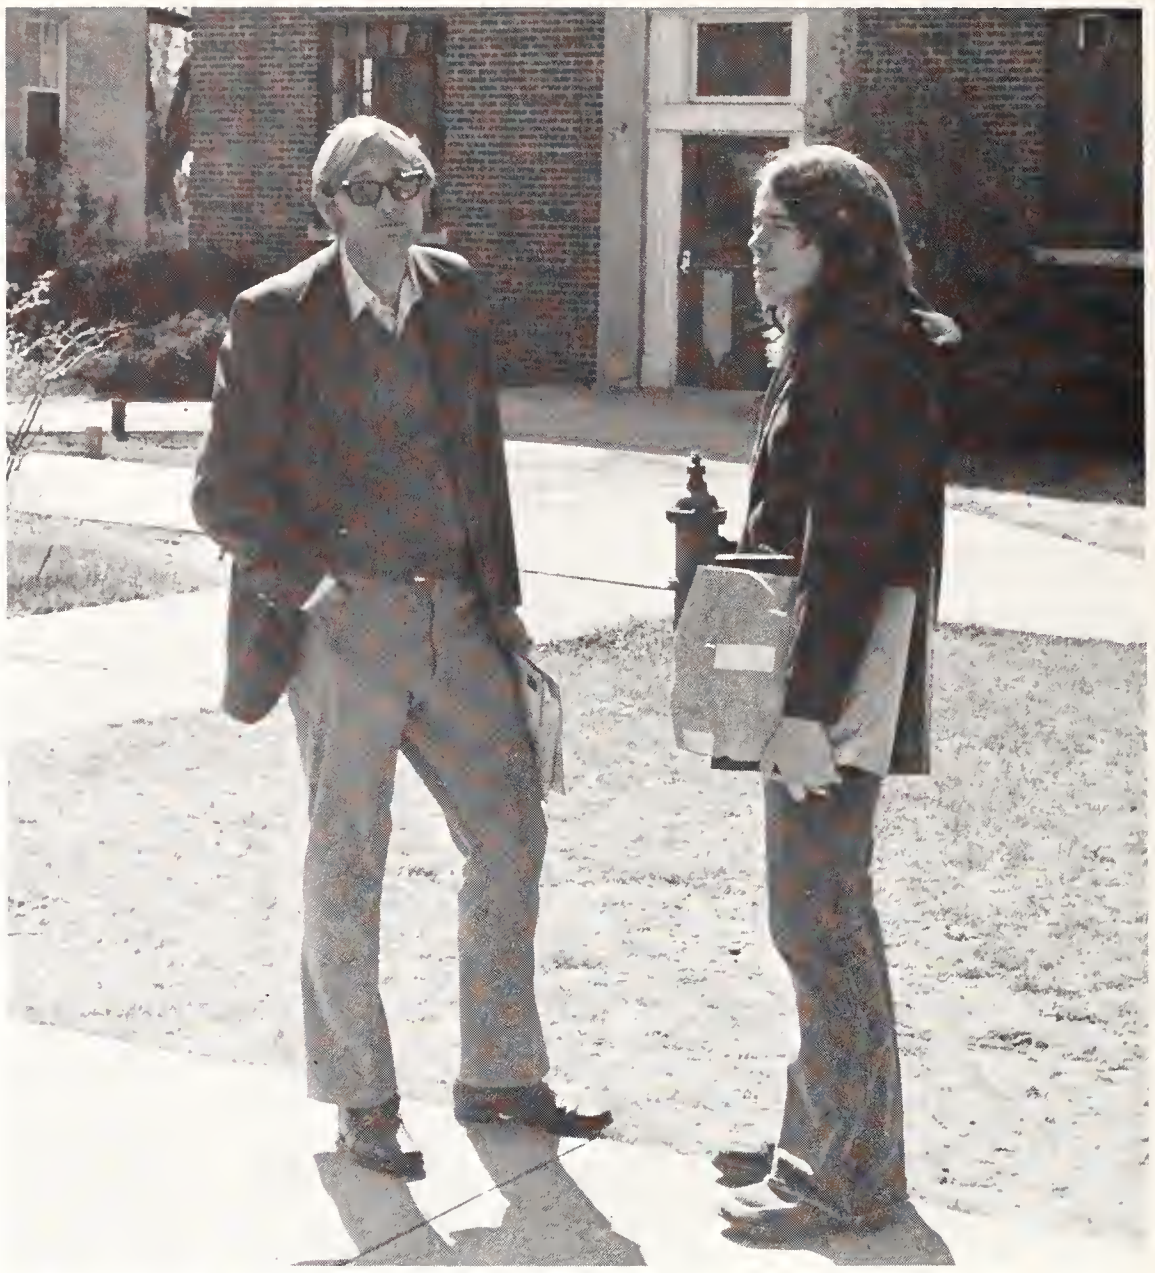
The idea of most religions is charity and community. In that sense, Saint Joe's is often a true spiritual experience. If a person in someone's family dies, the kids on the floor often chip in for a card, mass or flowers . . . or maybe even to finance a trip home. They do it because they care.



The chapel renovation pulls coins from many pockets because its completion is something we can all be proud of.





You don't have to be religious to go to the chaplain with your problems. He's simply a person who wants to listen to what you have to say.

SPECIAL EVENTS

I KID
PUMA

Floors are swept, unsightly objects are stashed away and students are ready to prove to Mom and Dad that we really can make it on our own. Corsages, the win over Wabash, good steaks and slow, sedate music all combine to say one thing:

"Thanks Mom and Dad. Without your help I never would have made it this far."

The Monte Carlo atmosphere, a few cocktails and a snatched conversation with a reassuring roommate all help to convince anxious parents that college life really does agree with their child. At any rate, Thanksgiving vacation is right around the corner.

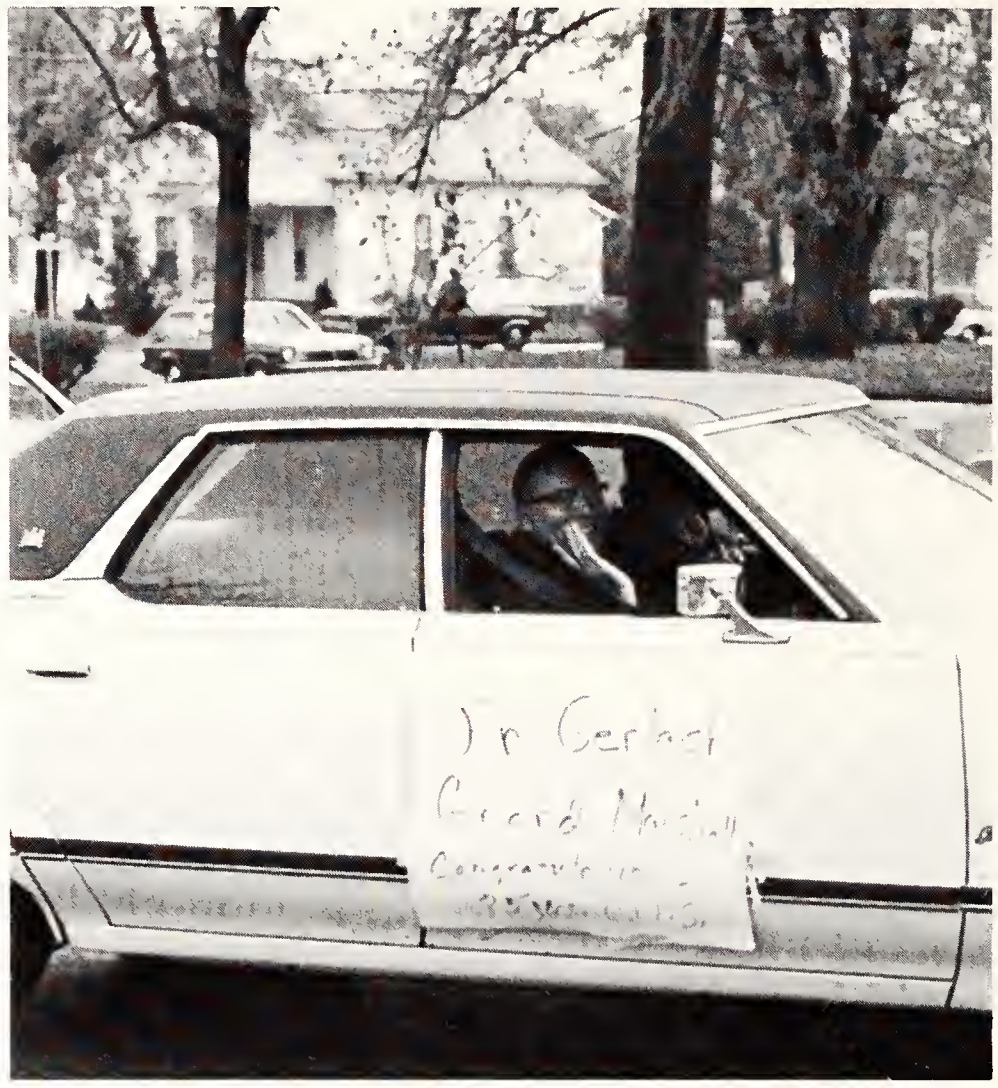
Monte Carlo

The ballroom is transformed into Las Vegas and "play money" starts circulating. Pumas try their luck at cards, roulette, and other casino games. And if you're not careful, you'll end up in jail for "curling your mustache."

HALLOWEEN

Halloween '75 kicked off Homecoming weekend, and Pumas did a lot of celebrating for both events. Of course, Pumas can be seen year-round in "unusual" get-ups, but Halloween gave us the opportunity to test our creativity. Judging from the looks of these costumes, I'd say we succeeded, wouldn't you?

HOMECOMING 1975



Homecoming '75 was a typical college homecoming. A casual observer probably wouldn't think it was anything special. But to Pumas, past and present, Homecoming has a special atmosphere.

Oh, we had our rough spots. The traditional bonfire, scheduled for Friday evening, was set a day early. The weatherman didn't cooperate with us, either. Saturday found parade watchers braving a cold rain. But the floats, clowns and other parade units trudged on through it all.

COURT: Patti O'Donnell, Jan Carr, Queen Kim Lyon, Mary Lou Paluch, Maureen Pufahl.

The football team lent excitement to the festivities with a sudden burst of energy towards the end of the game.

BSU COURT: Denise Brown, Alfreida Brown, Monica Moody, Gail Giles.

After the game, alumni, faculty and students gathered at a reception in the fieldhouse to find old friends, and even make some new ones. At times we caught ourselves saying, "That face is so familiar, but I can't remember the name."

BICENTENNIAL 1776-1976

Saint Joe joined in the Bicentennial celebration by holding a colonial fair. Local merchants displayed their wares, while we were free to browse around, or join in an old-fashioned sing-a-long. Pumas could treat themselves to goods from a bake sale, or settle for the traditional "pie in the face."

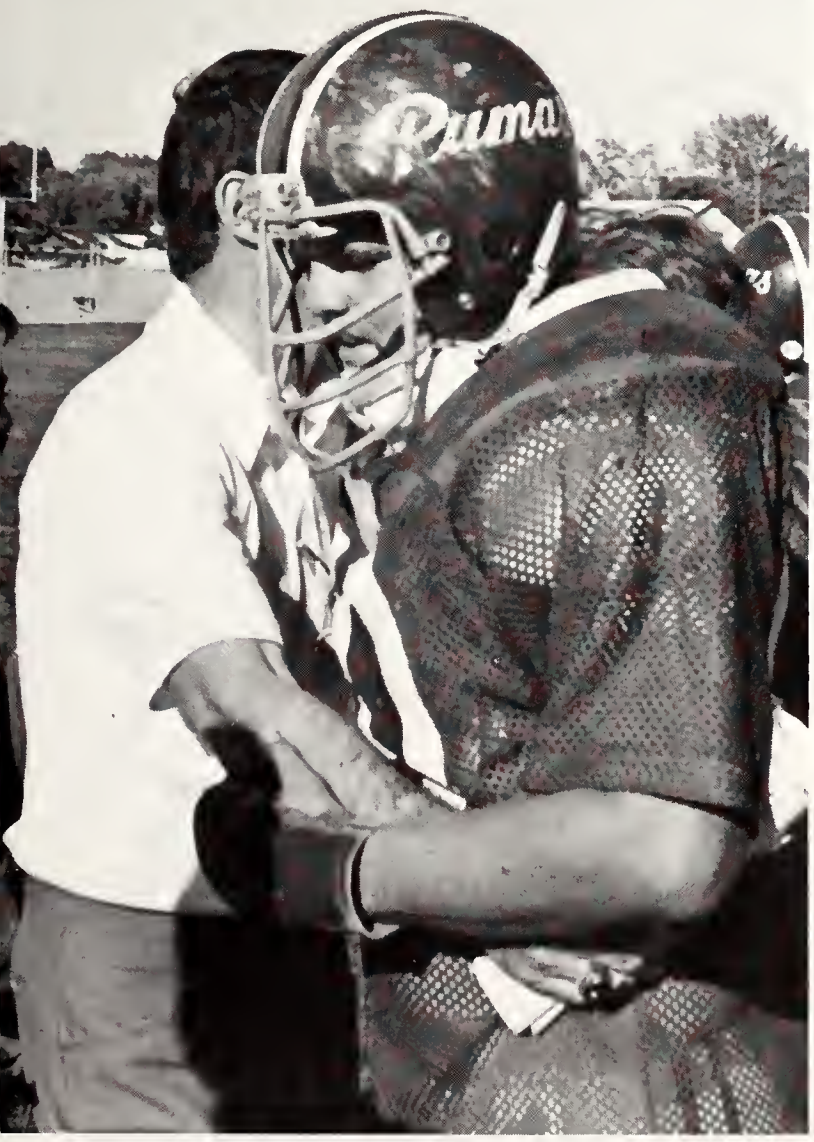
Football is five-a-days and weeks of grueling practice. Posters, prayers, and pre-game meals help "fire up" the Pumas.



Even though every game isn't a big win we know they tried. They have the bruises and broken bones to prove it.

But there is satisfaction . . . A win over Wabash . . . Beating Valpo in the last game of the season.

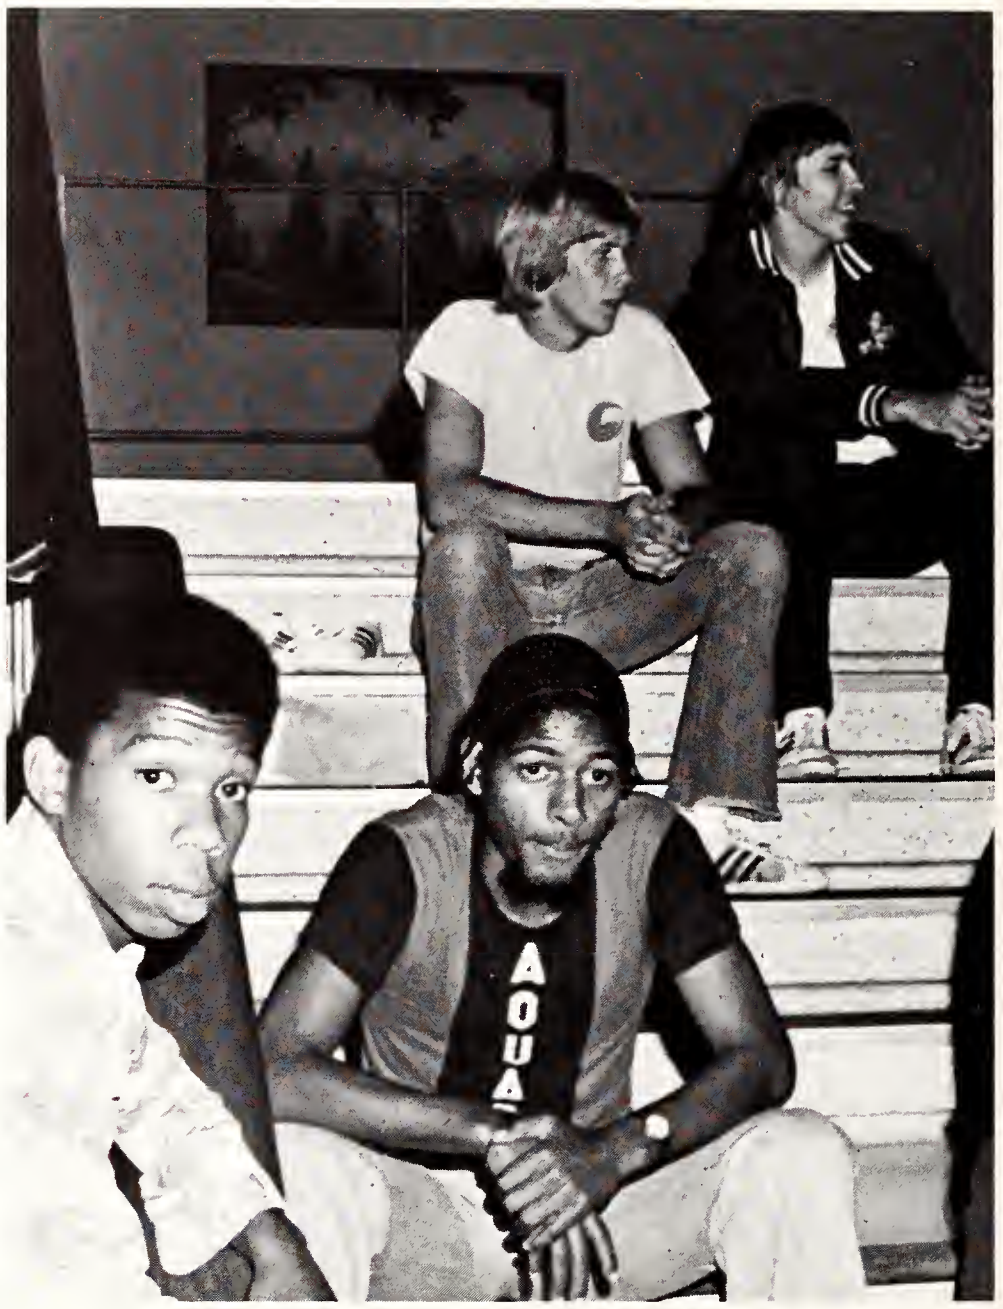
MIDNIGHT MADNESS

Midnight of October 14 was the hour the SJC fans were anxiously awaiting. The Madness began when each floor from Justin and Halas participated in "Jail a Jock." Four girls from each floor searched for a hidden player, captured him, ran him to the gym, and returned for another prisoner. Halas First was victorious and won $25.



"It was your bright idea getting us into this," the girls from Justin Second East tell Mary Ann Muting.

Festivities continued at the gym where Bennett Hall showed its appreciation for the Pumas by singing an original composition.

'75-'76 PUMA BASKETBALL

RENSSELAER, Ind.—High highs and low lows characterized a roller-coaster season on the hardwood for a band of spirited Puma cagers. Sandwiched within a 17-11 year was the elation of a strong showing at Marquette, a crushing loss at Cincinnati, a pair of one-point squeakers over Butler, narrow but fatal losses to Evansville, a rare and satisfying sweep of Valparaiso, then finally the thrill of an 11th-hour NCAA tourney bid, eventually deflated by losses to Eastern Illinois and Wright State.

Klamrowski's playmaking—artistry in motion.

Gray's outside shooting—precision on parade.

Wiggs' rebounding—a tower of power.

Johnson's leaping—poetry in mid-air.

It started in the sixties, mushroomed in the seventies and should continue through the eighties: Pumas jamming our House of Noise on wintry, windy nights to show opponents they're fighting the odds against ten or 12 Pumas in uniform and another thousand in the stands.—CJS

RENSSELAER, Ind.—Alert, aggressive baserunning plus sticky fielding plus clutch pitching plus five regulars hitting .320 or higher equals winning baseball. That's the formula the '76 Pumas used to win their last five games in moving to a school-record fourth consecutive winning season. Following the example of senior MVP Barry Blane, talented freshmen and sophomores sharpened their skills, multiplied self-confidence and broadcast this clear message: the '77 Pumas will be a power to be reckoned with, not only in the ICC but in the NCAA.-CJS

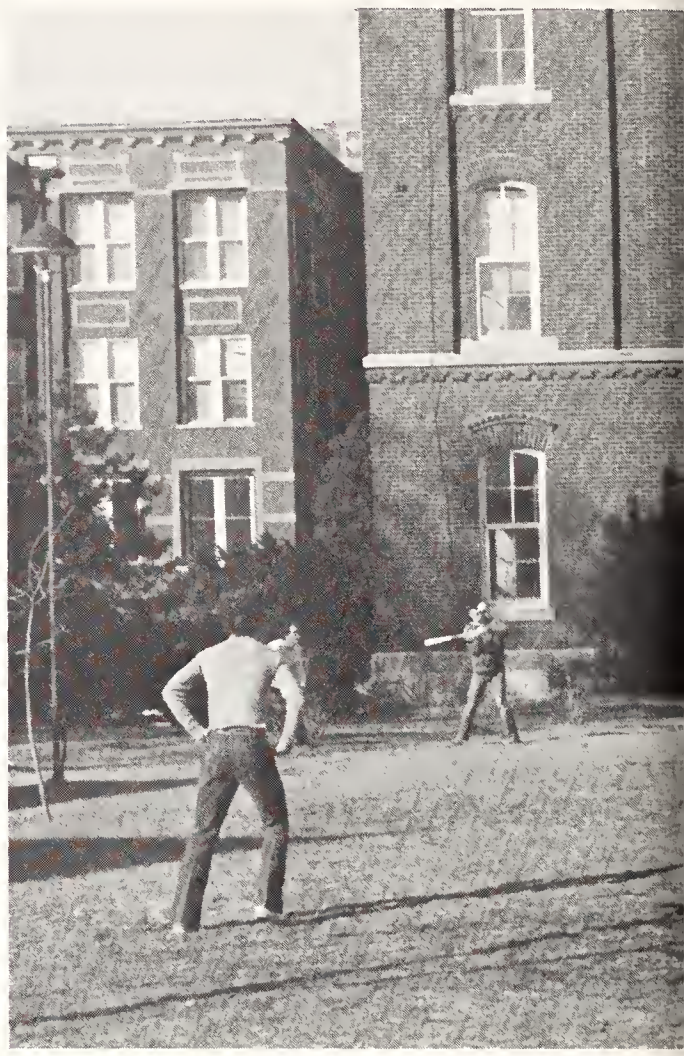
Kyle Wiggs and Gerry Klamrowski aren't the only Pumas who shine on the basketball court; 1976 saw the birth of new Puma superstars with the establishment of girls' varsity sports.

Intercollegiate volleyball and basketball are a welcome addition for those Pumettes who are tired of sitting on the sidelines and these programs offer a new dimension in sports entertainment.

INTRA



Some of the more interesting athletic contests take place on the IM fields or back courts. It is here that your average Pumas don gym shorts or cutoffs and reveal their true identity as "superjocks."

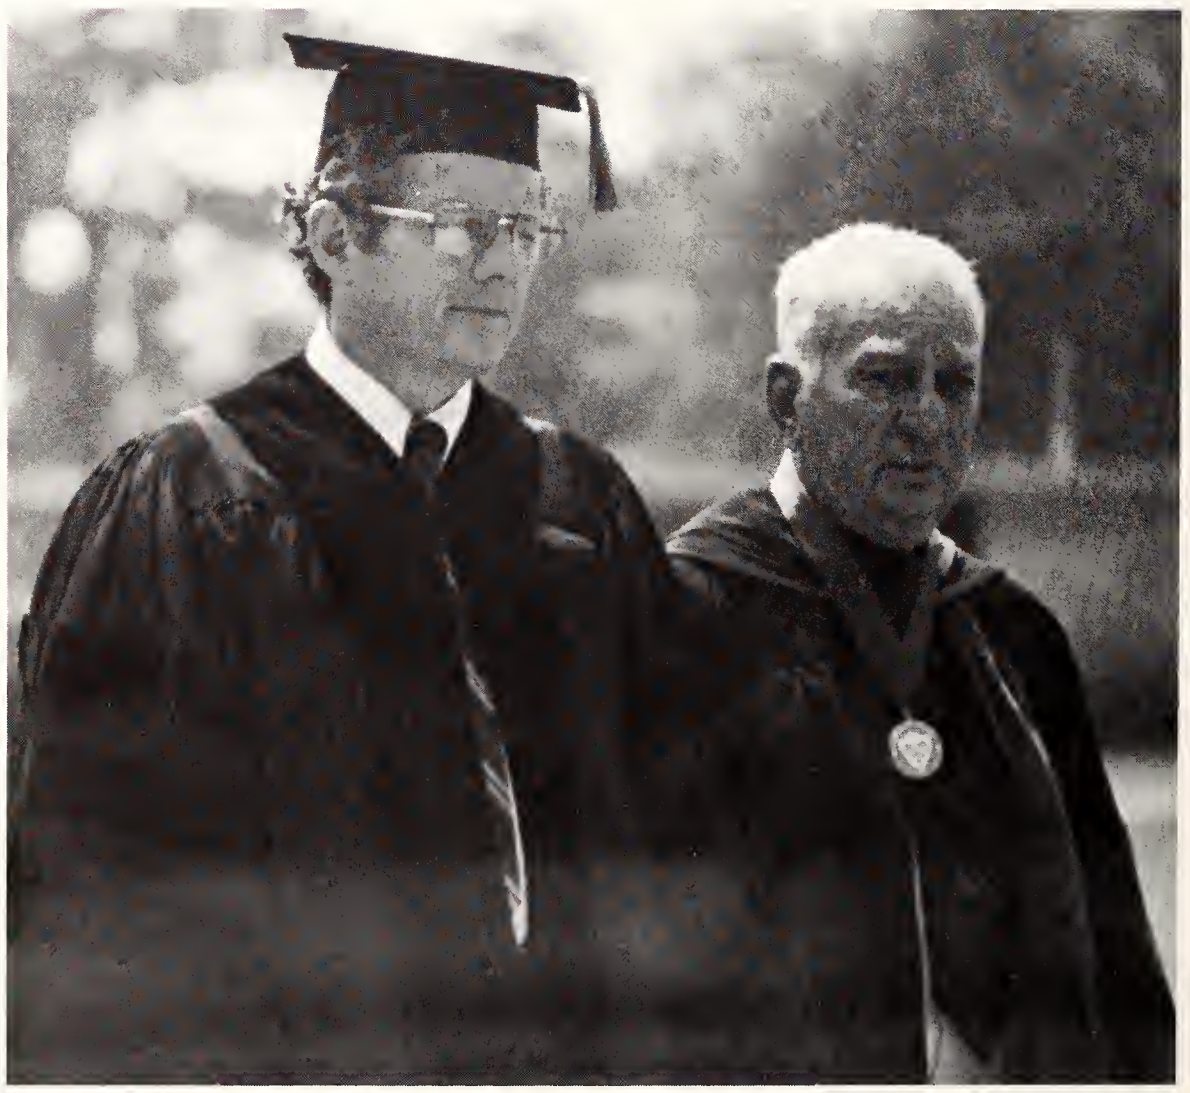
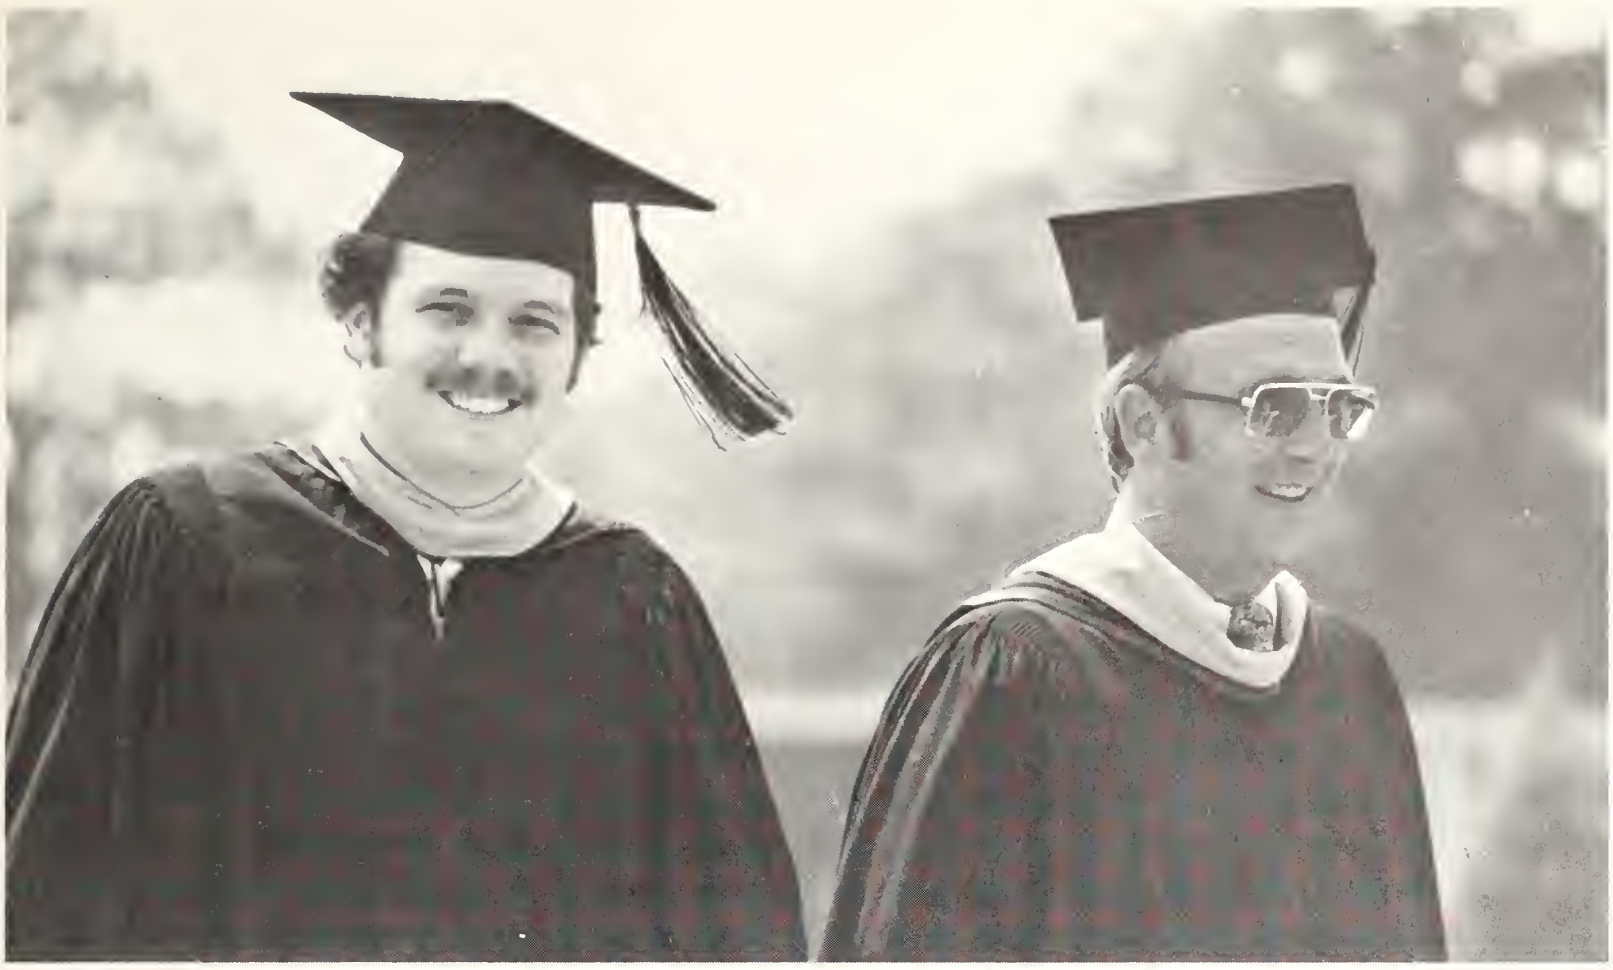
Graduation

1976





"Each of you, I'm sure, will remember the year 1976 as a milestone in your life—a year in which you attained one goal and hopefully set others, a year in which you left the security of the academic life for the uncertainty of what some call the 'real world,' a year in which you made a new beginning. But, more importantly, I hope that you will be able to look back upon 1976 as the year that America itself made a new beginning—the year that a proud and dedicated people marched boldly into a third century of nationhood with a spirit of renewed confidence and vitality." Walter Flowers

Remember . . .

. . . when everybody who was anybody wore saddle shoes?
. . . when the snack bar was the late night place to be?
. . . when Halas was a guys dorm?
. . . black lights and posters?
. . . when there were three guys to every girl on campus?
. . . ARA and meatless Wednesdays?
. . . when Noll was a coed dorm?
. . . when our band marched at the Bears' game?
. . . when Gaspar was a dorm?
. . . when Core syllabi were free?
. . . Lil' Abner and Roaring 20's weekends?
. . . when all the cheerleaders were females?
. . . when Kyle Wiggs was only a freshman?
. . . when A&P and Schultz's were a wide open field?
. . . when the Ad building burned down?

Remember . . .

. . . WOWI during dinner?
. . . when everybody had long hair?
. . . when only farmers wore overalls?
. . . the "Greasy Spoon?"
. . . when Gambie's delivered?
. . . "Ten Nights in a Barroom?"
. . . the blackout during the Butler basketball game?
. . . when mail was delivered twice a day?
. . . the tournaments at Evansville and Eastern?
. . . Thursday nights at Raff's?
. . . ice skating on the pond?
. . . Father Banet's Christma$ present in '73?
. . . energy conservation?
. . . being snowed in at Christmas time?
. . . Jimmy Thordsen's last game?
. . . the baseball championship?
. . . when streaking was the late-night entertainment?
. . . when Justin was bombarded with snowballs?
. . . when the Bears moved out of Justin?
. . . Spring Break?
. . . dorm damage checks?
. . . when Rensselaer was "home away from home?"
. . . pulling all-nighters?
. . . Core presentations and projects?
. . . when the laundromat charged only 25¢?
